EDITORIAL

Long live the collector! We are happy to report that the collector is alive and well. As the market for US coins softened last fall and the ever-wary investor turned and ran, we all wondered what the New York International in December would bring. The International was full of auctions. We attended auctions for ten days without a break and threw in the busiest show of the year on top of that. The speculator, who has haunted the market place for the last several seasons, was noticeably absent. Nevertheless, coins fairly estimated sold well throughout the auctions. Collector coins rare and common, high grade and low, found happy collector homes.

Even without the investor, several ancients fetched new record prices. The Ides of March aureus of Brutus in the NFA sale sold for a record setting $550,000. Several of the aurei in the Whitney sale fetched in the low six figures. Our sale of the Kerry Keith Wetterstrom collection sold over 90% of all coins offered for sale with 100% of the Alexandrian selling for strong prices. The Hunt sale of Byzantine saw the record price for a Byzantine coin shattered several times during the four sessions. The solidus of Zoe fetched an amazing $90,000 to an anonymous buyer during the last session. But, records aside, the most interesting phenomenon was that the (Continued on page 2) collector was buying and buying strongly in the collector oriented sales. Rare and interesting Bactrian fetched solid prices in the NFA sale, the buyers of aureii from around the world eagerly snatched up choice examples in the Whitney and NFA sales; eager buyers of Alexandrian lined up to participate in our sale; and it would seem every buyer in the world for Byzantine was represented at the Hunt sale.

Welcome to our first list of 1991. The look is the same; the layout and design have been tightened up a bit. We appreciate your comments, suggestions and observations during the past year.

We offer ten masterpieces for your consideration. Prices on these pieces can be obtained by calling the office. In addition, almost 400 priced coins are offered, including an excellent selection in each of the areas we handle.

Note that Eric's phone number and address have been moved up to page one. Some of you said you were having trouble locating it in the back. However, remember orders from the Review must go to the east coast office to be properly received and processed.

Work is well underway for the next Classical Numismatic Auction. Sale 14, which will be mailed in the middle of February, will be a mail bid sale featuring over 1200 lots of Greek, Roman, Byzantine, Medieval and English coins, plus a section of related numismatic literature. There should be something for everyone.

Our next public auction will be held in Chicago this coming August during the week of the American Numismatic Association Convention. The sale will include about a thousand lots of better Ancient, Medieval and English coins. We are now accepting consignments of collections and better quality individual coins to join two interesting collections which have already been consigned.

If you are considering the sale of material please let us have the opportunity to discuss the matter with you.

We offer competitive rates, excellent cataloging, prompt settlements, one of the largest mailing lists in the business, and service second to none. We are dedicated to the service of you, our customer.

Hope your numismatic hunt is a successful one as we begin the new year.

SEVERAL UNPUBLISHED ANCIENTS

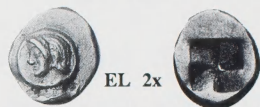

Compiled by Peter Lampinen
Contributions by Leslie Beer Tobey &
Peter Lampinen

There are many pleasures involved in handling ancient coins, and surely one of them is the excitement of finding a previously unknown type. Such discoveries can range from the extremely important, illuminating an obscure period in ancient history, to the merely curious, adding a minor variety to the records. As you might imagine, a dealer has many opportunities to discover such items in all areas of ancient coinage. What we hope to begin, in this issue of CNR, is a regular feature describing such pieces as they come into our possession, thus making the information available to scholars and collectors. Leslie Beer Tobey, a noted expert on the coinage of Aegina, has already provided an analysis of the unusual variety of "tortoise" presented here. We welcome comments by other specialists and interested collectors. Our research library is by no means complete, and it is possible that many of these coins might be in a reference book not in our possession. This also would be of interest to us and our readers.

AEgina. After 456 BC. Stater. (12.24 gms.). Land tortoise, head turned left, one eye and the mouth visible, carapace divided into thirteen detailed segments. Cf. BMFA 1113. Toned EF. SOLD.

Two dies of left-facing tortoises and three of right-facing are known, from the Myron and Myrina hoards in the Athens Museum, and the specimens in the Boston Museum. This example is from an unrecorded die, and is sharper than the Boston pieces. The facial treatment of all the one-eyed tortoises can be closely related to the "T-back" turtles of 479-456 BC, and one can postulate that this style tortoise represents the earliest type of this issue. They are clearly of 5th century BC date, for one left-facing tortoise is known overstruck by Azbaal of Kition, 449-425 BC.

MYSIA. Cyzicus. 5th Century BC. El Twelfth. (1.31 gms.). Head of youth left on shield, tunny below. Quadripartite incuse square. Unpublished as a Twelfth. Good VF. (See this list, #111)

This type is known as a Stater (Von Fritze 105) and a Hecte (Rosen 486), but not as a Twelfth. The identity of the person on the obverse, a young man with close cropped hair resembling a cap, is unknown, but is usually described as an Ephebe, an Athenian boy just reaching manhood, preparing for military training. Cyzicus is well known for its extensive electrum series, many featuring mythological beasts and heroes that would be familiar to the cities that traded with that important city. Perhaps an Athenian citizen visiting Cyzicus would recognize a hero from his city's traditional history.

BABYLON. Satrap Mazaïos and successors. 331-311 BC. Tetradrachm. (16.31 gms.). Baaltar seated left, holding sceptre, left hand resting on backless throne; M T monogram below seat. Lion walking right, tail between legs. Cf. Mitchiner IG Type 7 (lion left). Fine. SOLD

Mazaïos issued coins as a Persian governor in Cilicia and Syria, and, after surrendering Babylon to Alexander, as satrap of that province also. He continued the Baal and lion series wherever he held power, and it continued in Babylon after his death in 328 BC. The series finally ended under the Seleucids circa 280 BC. This piece, with a single monogram under the seat and lion facing right, is unpublished and was probably issued shortly after his death.

Priscus is known as a magistrate at Akmoneia under Plautilla (cf. BMC 74). The reverse type of Zeus and Hera is also found at Brusius (cf. BMC 18), but the small figure behind them is unrecorded. On occasion the emperor is shown in association with the gods, (cf. Appia, BMC 9), so this tiny figure may be Caracalla.

Valentine Duval: An Autobiography.

Edited by Anne Manning. (Clio's Cabinet Lodi, WI 1990 reprint of 1860 English language edition, London). From the series Ancient Art, History and the Connoisseur (Clio's Cabinet). Hardbound. 142 pages with added illustrations by Parnell Nelson. $19.95.

This reprint by Wayne G. Sayles of the memoirs of Valentine Jameray Duval (1695-1775) allows the reader a rare glimpse into the personal life of one of the great numismatists of the past. Although not as well known to the modern numismatist as his curatorial successor at Vienna, Joseph Eckhel, Duval's involvement and influence led to the foundation of Vienna's cabinet. He wrote two major works about ancient coins, both extremely rare today but important for the time.

This autobiography is not as much an insight into the numismatic and antiquarian side of Duval as it is a tribute to a man of great compassion, sensitivity and lust for life and its traditions. It makes for just as much captivating reading today as when it was written. In an avocation where most of the reading that one peruses is scholarly but dry catalogs, this book comes as a refreshing and welcome change!

GREEK

1. ETRURIA, Uncertain Mint (Populonia or Vetulonia?). C. 3rd century B.C. Drachm(?) (4.18 gm). Laureate youthful male head left, mark of value X behind. Blank. SNG ANS 26. Sambon 75. Superb EF, lustrous.

The date, mint, denomination, and design of this coinage remain obscure, like much about the Etruscans, and we must await further research or hoard evidence to provide secure interpretations of this enigmatic issue. One of the few safe conclusions that can be drawn about this coinage is that the lack of a reverse type is not an indication of early date. In fact, Etruscan types with a blank reverse alternate with issues featuring a reverse design, and the appearance or lack of a reverse design cannot be taken as a direct indication of chronological sequence.

2. KINGS OF LYDIA, Croesus. 561-546 B.C. Gold stater of the light standard (8.02 gm). Forepart of lion right confronting forepart of bull left. Rectangular two part incuse. Traité I, 401, pl. X, 2. Rosen 660. Superb EF, lustrous.

The Lydian king Croesus is generally credited with the introduction of the first bimetallic coinage, which replaced the earlier Lydian coinage in electrum. The first gold staters were struck on a "heavy standard" of about 10.89 grams, making them equivalent in value to an electrum stater on the Milesian standard. However, these heavy gold staters bore no convenient relationship to the silver issues in the new system, and the weight of the gold was soon reduced to about 8.17 grams, making a gold stater of this reduced "light standard" equivalent in value to ten silver staters.

3. KINGS OF BACTRIA, Antimachos. C. 171-160 B.C. Tetradrachm (16.84 gm). Panjhir mint, struck c. 171-168 B.C. Draped and diademed bust of Antimachos I right, wearing flat kausia. ΒΑΣΙΛΕΥΣ ΘΕΟΥ ANTIMAXΟΥ, Poseidon standing facing, holding trident in right hand and palm branch with taenia in left, monogram to right. Mitchiner 124c. Nearly EF. Very rare.

Antimachos is unknown to history, and we rely upon his coins to reconstruct the course of his reign and to learn his appearance. Along with Agathocles and Pantaleon, Antimachos was apparently one of the legitimate successors of Demetrius. Antimachos and Agathocles, in fact, issued a series of pedegree coins, honoring former Bactrian kings, apparently to advertise their legitimacy. Like their predecessor Demetrius, however, this "legitimate trio" succumbed gradually to the power of the rising leader Eucratides, who extended his rule over Bactria by c. 168 B.C. (at which date Antimachos' Bactrian coinage comes to an end) and took over the last remaining mints south of the Hindu Kush by 160 B.C. Mitchiner knew of just 36 portrait tetradrachms of Antimachos, including only two of this variety. This coin is one of the finest known of Antimachos' tetradrachms, with one of the best portraits of this king, finely engraved and well preserved.

4. JUDAEA, First Revolt. 66-70 C.E. Shekel of Year Three (14.21 gm). Hebrew legend ("Shekel of Israel") around chalice with nine pellets, "Year 3" above. Hebrew legend ("Jerusalem the Holy") around branch with three pomegranates. Meshorer 18. Superb EF, with sharp strike and attractive toning.

The interpretation of the designs on First Revolt shekels has been the subject of much controversy. The chalice is most likely the golden Temple vessel which held the omer; this vessel was used on the second day of Passover when a measure of barley, representing the first fruits, was offered in the Temple. This vessel is also depicted on the Arch of Titus in Rome among the booty plundered by the Romans. The pomegranate, a traditional object of ornamentation in Jewish art, was used to adorn the Temple built by Solomon and appeared on prominent objects within the Temple, including the menorah.

ROMAN IMPERIAL

5. Caligula. 37-41 A.D. Aureus (7.80 gm). Struck 40 A.D. C CAESAR AVG PON M TR POT III COS III, laureate bust of Caligula right. DIVVS AVG PATER PATRIAE, radiate bust of Augustus right. RIC 23 (R3). BMC 24. C. 6. EF. Very rare.

Throughout his reign, Caligula paid honor on his coins to his great grandfather Augustus, founder of the principate. Indeed, Caligula's claim to the throne was due solely to his lineage and the worthiness of other, by then deceased, members of his family, and it was natural that his coins should emphasize his family background. The chief remaining uncertainty about the precious metal coinage of Caligula is the location of the main mint. Tiberius struck gold and silver at Lugdunum, but by sometime during the reign of Nero Rome had assumed this function. The move most likely occurred under Caligula in 37-38 A.D., when a number of differences can be noted in the coinage: the change from bare to laureate head, the change of lettering from an irregular to a neater form with serifs, and a closer parallelism with the base metal coinage, whose production had remained in Rome. This coin, accordingly, was most likely struck in Rome.

6. Claudius. 41-54 A.D. Aureus (7.60 gm). Struck 50-54 A.D. TI CLAVD CAESAR AVG GERM PM TRIB POT PP, laureate bust of Claudius right. AGRIPPINAE AVGVSTAE, draped bust of Agrippina Junior right, wearing crown of corn ears, with hair in long plait behind. RIC 80 (R). BMC 72. C. 3. EF. Rare.

Agrippina, the sister of Caligula, was connected with a conspiracy against her brother in 39 A.D. and was banished. Her uncle Claudius, however, recalled her and married her in 49 A.D., after which he honored her on his coins. She persuaded Claudius to adopt her son Nero in 50 A.D., and it was generally believed that she was responsible for poisoning Claudius to assure Nero's succession. Regrettably for her, however, the son took after the mother. The domineering Agrippina fell out of favor with Nero, who arranged for her murder in 59AD.

7. Antoninus Pius. 138-161 A.D. Aureus (7.31 gm). Struck 145 A.D. ANTONINVS AVG PIVS PP TRP COS IIII, laureate bust of Antoninus right. LIB IIII in exergue, Antoninus seated left on curule chair atop platform, his right hand extended, accompanied by Liberalitas standing left to the right of Antoninus, emptying coins out of cornucopiae into fold of toga of citizen who stands right on ground before the platform. RIC 140(c). BMC 542. C. 494. Superb EF. Rare.

Ex NFA XXII (1989), 62.

This rare reverse type commemorates the fourth largess of the reign of Antoninus Pius, distributed in 145 A.D. in honor of the marriage of his daughter Faustina Junior to Marcus Aurelius and the joint consulship of the emperor and his new son-in-law. Interestingly, the coins commemorating the largess were not used for the distribution itself. The actual largess was distributed, as customary, in coins of exceptional denominations -- gold quinarii, silver quinarii, and copper quadrantes.

8. Faustina Junior. Wife of Marcus Aurelius and Daughter of Antoninus Pius. Aureus (7.25 gm). Struck under Antoninus Pius, 149-152 A.D. FAVSTINAE AVG PII AVG FIL, draped bust of Faustina right, her hair elaborately dressed in horizontal waves, coiled in chignon on back of head, and bound with band of pearls. VENERI GENETRICI, Venus standing facing, head left, extending her right hand and holding spear in left. RIC 511 variant (Venus holding apple in right hand). BMC 1057 variant (same). C. 230 variant (same). Adolph Cahn Auction 71, Frankfurt, October 14, 1931, lot 1664 (same reverse die). Superb EF. Charming portrait. Rare.

Kent-Hirmer plates 94 and 99, 327, this coin. Women of the Caesars, p. 115 and pl. xxx, this coin. Ex NFA XXII (1989), 69.

The coinage of Faustina begins in 146 A.D., during her father's reign, when she was elevated to the rank of Augusta after the birth of her first child to Marcus Aurelius. This coin, although not precisely datable from the legend, can be dated from her hairstyle. She adopted this particular coiffure no earlier than 149 A.D. and did not use it later than 152 A.D.

9. Nero Claudius Drusus. Father of Claudius, died 9 B.C. Sestertius (31.10 gm). Struck under Claudius, c. 50-54 A.D. NERO CLAVDIVS DRVSVS GERMANICVS IMP, bare bust of Nero Claudius Drusus left. TI CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG PM TRP IMP PP SC, Claudius seated left on curule chair amidst arms, holding olive branch. RIC (Claudius) 109. BMC 208. Near EF, dark brown.

The son of Livia and brother of Tiberius, Drusus married Antonia, daughter of Antony and Octavia. He had a successful military career and was held in great respect both for his abilities and his generous character, but he died in Germany at the age of 30 as a consequence of his horse falling upon him. A solemn funeral was held in Rome, and both Augustus and Tiberius delivered orations in his praise. Claudius was born in 10 B.C., the year prior to his father's death.

One of the most unusual of all Roman coin types, this detailed view of the harbor at Ostia commemorates the enlargement and improvement commenced by Claudius and completed by Nero. Originally Rome had used the Tiber mouth at Ostia as a harbor, but by the end of the Republic the silt carried down the Tiber was endangering shipping. Caesar's project of building a new harbor was carried out by Claudius some two miles north of Ostia. Thirty thousand men were employed on the project for eleven years in succession. Part of this harbor was dug out from the land, and two moles were built out to sea, enclosing about one hundred and sixty acres. The Claudian harbor continued in use until the 8th century AD by which time it had become choked with sand.

Miller explores the fascinating world of classical coins and their "impressive" investment performance. Written in the early eighties, the information is a little outdated. CLASSICAL NUMISMATIC REVIEW

Fixed Price List

A Group of North Greek Fractions.

The following twenty-two coins (plus two more under Boeotia, LOTS 87 & 88) are part of a small accumulation of sixth and fifth century BC silver fractions, mostly from Thrace and Macedonia. Although a few pieces are later and probably intrusive, the majority are consistent with a single deposit of that period and location. Many of these tiny coins still lack a firm consensus on origin and date, and the identifications of the last seven in this group are quite conjectural, in some cases totally unknown. Even the denominations are uncertain, with several weight systems in use in the area. A complete list of all 146 pieces in this group is being prepared, containing duplicates from this short list and other coins from northern Greece, including several other unpublished types. Please contact us if you are interested in examples from this intriguing collection.

39. THRACE. Selymbria. Circa 500-450 BC. Obol. (0.92 gms.). Cock standing right. Head of Herakles, wearing lion's skin right in incuse square. SNG Cop 790. Near VF, porosity. $195.00

A very rare city; this is the only example in the group and the only one we have ever owned.

40. THRACE. Trierus. Circa 450-400 BC. Hemiobol. (0.32 gms.). Laureate head of Apollo right. Laurel leaf. SNG Evlepidis 1040. Nice VF. $95.00

41. THRACE, Islands off. Thasos. Before 500 BC. Hemiobol. (0.38 gms.). Dolphin leaping left; four pellets below. Incuse punch. Unpublished, but cf. Gorny Sale 48, lot 145 (two pellets below dolphin). VF, nice detail on dolphin. $90.00

42. THRACE, Islands off. Thasos. Circa 411-350 BC. Obol. (0.40 gms.). Head of bearded satyr right. Two dolphins. SNG Cop 1033. Good VF, some encrustation. $125.00

A magnificent little work of sculpture, with a finely drawn satyr's head on the obverse.

43. MACEDON. Aegae. Circa 550-480 BC. 1/8 Stater or Trihemiobol. (1.02 gms.). Goat kneeling right. Deep quadripartite incuse punch. SNG ANS 66, SNG Cop 25. Toned VF, nice full flan. $95.00

44. MACEDON. Aegae. Circa 550-480 BC. Hemiobol. (0.36 gms.). Head of Goat right. Quadripartite incuse square. SNG Ash 2232. VF, light porosity. $95.00

Attribution to Aegae is uncertain.

45. MACEDON. "Lete". Before 500 BC. 1/8 Stater or Trihemiobol. (1.05 gms.). Naked satyr running right. Rough incuse punch. Unpublished with plain incuse punch, but cf. Berk list 53, 4 ("diobol of 1.20 gms."). VF, nice early type. $165.00

46. MACEDON. "Lete". Circa 500-480 BC. 1/8 Stater or Trihemiobol. (1.01 gms.). Naked satyr running right. Quadripartite incuse square of "mill-sail" type. SNG Cop 191. Good VF. $125.00

Lete was not in itself an important town, and should not have been responsible for the quantity of coinage attributed to it. It was, however, located near some of the wealthy silver mining areas of Macedonia, and may have been coining the bullion coming out of the mines.

47. MACEDON. Mende. Circa 520-480 BC. Tritartemorion? (0.42 gms.). Bridled head of ass left. Diagonally quartered incuse square. SNG ANS 305, SNG Cop 203. Good VF. $75.00

48. MACEDON. Mende. Circa 460-423 BC. Tritartemorion? (0.33 gms.). Forepart of ass left. Kantharos in incuse square. Cf. SNG ANS 369. Good VF. $85.00

CLASSICAL NUMISMATIC REVIEW

49. MACEDON, Scione. Circa 480-450 BC. Hemibol. (0.31 gms.). Male head right, wearing tainia. Human eye in incuse square. Unpublished with head wearing tainia (headband), but cf. SNG ANS 710 for type. Nice VF. $125.00

50. MACEDON, Stagira. Circa 530-500 BC. Hemibol. (0.24 gms.). Three flowers in circle, "Roses of Pangaeum." Incuse square, irregularly divided. Rosen 163, VF, scarce. $125.00

The mountains of Pangaeum produced wealth not only from its silver mines, but also from its roses, used in the production of the finest perfumes.

51. MACEDON, Terone. Circa 480-420 BC. Hemibol. (0.22 gms.). Oinochoe; object to right (a leaf?). Quadripartite square in relief. Unlisted with object in field and raised reverse pattern. Near VF, corrosion. $75.00

52. MACEDON, Tragilus. Circa 450-400 BC. Hemibol. (0.25 gms.). T R I A (from upper left quadrant) in quadripartite incuse square. Cf. SNG Cop 447. Good VF. $85.00

It is curious that some Macedonian fractions have a rho that resembles the Latin R more than the standard Greek P. Early Greek script included many alternate letter forms, including p or R for rho. As the alphabet was standardized P became the regular form.

53. MACEDON, Chalcidian League. 432-348 BC. Tetartemol. (2.17 gms.). Laureate head of Apollo left. Seven-stringed lyre. SNG ANS 521. Near VF. $65.00

Later and larger than most of the rest of the group; possibly intrusive.

The attributions of the following coins are very problematic.

54. THRACE? Dikaia? Circa 520-480 BC. Diobol? (1.02 gms.). Cock facing right. Incuse horse head left. Apparently unpublished. Near VF, porosity. $165.00

The cock, a familiar symbol of Dikaia, would suggest attribution to this city. But the reverse is extraordinary; there is no other incuse design known on a Northern Greek coin. It most closely resembles the incuse reverses on the electrum hectes of Mytilene on the island of Lesbos, but no silver is known with an incuse reverse.

55. THRACE? Elaius? Circa 550-480 BC. Tetartemolion? (0.19 gms.). Bee. Eagle head left in incuse square. Apparently unpublished, but cf. Rosen 384 for bee obverse (Asia Minor). Good VF. $95.00

Similar little bees appear frequently in groups of fractions from the Aegean, although usually with a plain punch reverse. Bees with place names include Ephesos, Melitae in Thessaly, the island of Ceos, and several towns in Crete. The small town of Elaius, which produced a bronze coinage with bees in the 3rd century BC and has no identified earlier coinage, seems the most logical Northern Greek candidate.

56. MACEDON, Dikaia. Circa 475-450 BC. Obol. (0.50 gms.). DIK A, seated figure right, holding round object. Sepia (octopus) in incuse square. Apparently unpublished. Fine+, corrosion. Unusual design. $175.00

Dikaia in Macedon (not the same as Dikaia in Thrace) was settled by colonists from Eretria on the island of Euboea. Its earliest coinage copied the Eretrian types of cowsepia. This fraction is previously unknown, and there is no evidence for the identity of the obverse figure.

57. MACEDON, Uncertain. Tetartemolion? (0.26 gms.). Ape squatting left. Round shield(?) in incuse circle. Apparently unpublished, but see Sternberg XXII, lot 55 (SF 2400 in VF) and Leu 45, lot 100 (ape right). Fine. Very rare. $295.00

This extremely rare issue represents the only depiction of an ape on a classical Greek coin. Apes were occasionally kept as house pets in ancient times, and the Northern Greeks may have become familiar with them from occupying Persians. In the Egyptian pantheon, the baboon was sacred to Thoth, the moon god and patron of learning. Could the round object on the reverse represent the moon? The same Greek cities that colonized the north also had extensive contacts with Egypt, and elements of Egyptian culture were suffused throughout the Greek world.

58. CORCYRA? Circa 500-450 BC. Tetartemoron? (0.18 gms.). Head of ram right. Kantharos in incuse square. Apparently unpublished, but cf. Sternberg XIX, lot 94 (ram head left). Near VF, slightly off-center. $115.00

Sternberg attributes this type to Maroneia, but Corcyra struck larger, similar coins with ram heads and kantharoi in combination with other types, and it is not impossible that coins from this island could circulate in northern Greece.

59. CARIA, Islands Off? Cos? Circa 550-500 BC. Obol? (0.48 gms.). Crab with body in very high relief. Incuse punch. Cf. SNG v. Aulock 6665 (Asia Minor). Near VF, reverse encrustation. $165.00

The crab is traditionally associated with Cos, but was also struck in other places whose livelihood depended on the sea. Just as a point of interest, there was a town in the Crimea called Cercinitis, or Crab City.

60. AEGEAN ISLAND? Circa 500-450 BC. Diobol. (0.95 gms.) Scorpion. Dolphin right in incuse square. SNG v. Aulock 6664 (Asia Minor). VF, porosity. Rare. $225.00

Another coin with a sea-related theme and no definite identification.

See lots 87 and 88 for more from this group.

61. THRACE. Black Sea Region. Apollonia Pontica. 450-400 BC. Drachm. (4.34 gms.). Gorgoneion. Anchor; Goryfish. SNG Cop 453. Good VF, a terrific, leering Gorgon's head. $295.00

62. THRACE. Istros. 400-350 BC. Stater. (5.49 gms.). Facing male heads, one inverted. Eagle riding on back of dolphin; II under tail. cf. BMC Thrace 9. Toned VF. $600.00

63. THRACE. Black Sea Region. Mesembria. 3rd-2nd Century BC. Æ 18mm. (7.07 gms.). Diademed female head right. Athena Alkidemos standing left, holding spear and shield. BMC Thrace 8. Brown EF. $195.00

64. THRACE. Black Sea Region. Odessus. 4th Century BC. Æ 19mm. (9.58 gms.). Laureate head of Zeus right. Horseman riding right. SNG Evelpidis 981. EF, green and brown patina. $295.00

67. THRACE, Kings of. Lysimachos. (Struck 301-299 BC). Drachm. (4.24 gms.). Colophon mint. Head of Herakles right wearing lionskin headdress. Zeus seated left; forepart of lion, Φ in left field, pentagram. Thompson 120. Good VF. $245.00

68. THRACE, Kings of. Lysimachos. (Struck 294-287 BC). Drachm. (4.25 gms.). Ephesos mint. Head of deified Alexander right. Athena seated left; bee in left field. Thompson 169. Toned VF. $495.00

IMPORTANT AND VERY RARE THRACIAN COIN

Skostokos, a figure known only from his coinage, apparently ruled some part of northern Greece for a brief period in the confusion following the deaths of Lysimachos and Seleukos. The rarity of his coinage suggests a very short reign; Youroukova hypothesizes that he may have died in the Celtic invasion of 279-278 BC.

RARE EARLY MACEDONIAN ISSUE FROM NEAPOLIS

70. MACEDON. Neapolis. 525-450 BC. Stater. (10.03 gms.). Gorgoneion. Quadripartite incuse square. SNG ANS 401. Toned VF. $3200.00

Early, less refined, rendition of the Gorgoneion.

71. MACEDON, Kings of. Alexander III. 336-323 BC. Tetradrachm. (17.04 gms.). Babylon mint. Head of Herakles right wearing lionskin headdress. Zeus seated left, holding eagle; MI and monogram in wreath. SNG Ash 3097. Good VF. $325.00

The Byzantine mint at Cherson.

Cherson, or the ancient Tauric Cherronesos, was founded in the fifth century BC by Megarian colonists on the southern shore of the Crimean peninsula, near modern Sevastopol. It became an important trading center, exchanging the manufactured goods of Greece for the timber, fish and gold found on the shores of the Black Sea and the Russian steppes. Its coinage depicted Artemis as patron of the city (see CNA XI, lot 77), and the wild animals of the hunt shown with her often display the vigorous, naturalistic style adapted from Greek art by the nomadic tribes.

For much of the Roman period Cherson was part of the Bosphoran Kingdom, but after the decline of that kingdom in the fourth century, the city became a distant outpost of the empire. Although some bronze coins may have been struck at Cherson in the fifth century, in imitation of imperial issues from Constantinople, the first true coinage of Cherson was the pentanummia of Justin I. This coin hardly resembles a Byzantine coin, with its emperor standing with spear and shield, and is clearly based on Roman issues. During his reign (518-527) the Slavs of the Balkans began to intrude on the security of the empire, and Cherson became important as a secure foothold on their flank. Justinian I struck other pentanummia, but the most extensive issues of Cherson bronzes were under Justin II and especially the military emperor Maurice. The 8-pentannumium was an unique denomination in the Byzantine series, based on the only previous coins struck at Cherson, and the representation of the imperial family was also unparalleled. A mere handful of coins were struck by Heraclius and Constans II, after which the growing pressure of Slavs in the west and Islam in the east drew the attention of the empire away from distant Cherson, and coinage became an unnecessary luxury. Rarity is relative in the Cherson series, and none of the coins of this first period can be considered common.

The reign of Michael III (842-867) saw the exhausted Byzantines in equilibrium with their opponents; the Bulgarian kingdom lacking a strong ruler and the Abbasids suffering a series of military setbacks. Cherson's situation improved somewhat, and coinage resumed but of an extremely crude nature. Cast of a poor mixture of copper and lead, these pieces of uncertain denomination usually bore only the initial of the emperor and a cross; very rarely was a portrait attempted. (See Berk/England Byzantine Sale, lot 333, for one of the better specimens of these scarce portraits). Cherson was once again a trading center, this time between Constantinople and the emerging state of Russia, led by Vladimir of Kiev. Ironically this led to the final loss of Cherson, for while Vladimir helped destroy the revitalized Bulgarian kingdom, removing the pressure from Constantinople, he also took Cherson from the Byzantines in 989.

Byzantine coinage at Cherson did not follow the usual pattern. Like Alexandria, it relied on local tradition in iconography and metrology, retaining a separate identity. The family 8-pentannumia even influenced regular coinage, when Phocas used it as a model for his bronzes. There is one other irony concerning Cherson; of the great branch mints of Byzantium, Antioch and Alexandria, Carthage, Rome and others, tiny Cherson was the last to close. Only Constantinople and Thessalonica in Greece proper remained (excluding mints of usurpers and subsidiary kingdoms).

The Turks later took the Crimea from the Russians, and then for three hundred years a native Tatar khanate ruled the peninsula. In 1777 Russia forced the Tatars to accept Russian rule, and has possessed the area since. Recent events, however, suggest that change might once again be coming to Cherson.

SPECIAL PURCHASE OF LATE HELLENISTIC TETRADRACHMS

From CYME & MYRINA IN AEOLIS

Available for $545.00 each
($1000.00 for a pair)
WHILE SUPPLY LASTS.

AEOLIS, Cyme
Circa 160 BC
Tetradrachm

Diademed head of Amazon Cyme right. Bridled horse standing right, lifting foreleg, a one-handled cup below, KYMAIΩN in field, varying magistrate's names below, all in laurel wreath.

All are VF or a little better.....$545.00

Cyme was the largest city in Aeolis. She claimed an Amazonian foundation. Cyme had the oldest coinage in Aeolis. However, as Cyme was an agricultural center and not a regular commercial city, she issued coins on an irregular basis. In about 160 BC, an imposing broad flan tetradrachm was issued simultaneously in the name of a number of Aeolian and Ionian cities. All were most likely issued by a single mint. This unusual circumstance, combined with the fact that the cities involved had little commercial enterprise, suggests that this coinage must have had some, as yet unknown, ceremonial intent.

The obverse type represents the mythical foundress of Cyme. The horse is a recurring type on the city's coinage.

AEOLIS, Myrina
Circa 160 BC
Tetradrachm

Laureate head of Apollo Grynaeus right. Apollo Grynaeus, nude to the waist, walking right, holding filleted laurel branch and phiale, at his feet, omphalos and amphora, MYPINAΙΩN behind, all in laurel wreath.

All are VF or a little better.....$545.00

Myrina, one of eleven ancient Aeolian cities listed by Herodotus (I: 149), was also named after an alleged Amazonian foundress. Her tetradrachms feature the oracular Apollo of the neighboring city of Grynium. The amphora is a constant on her coins and was most likely the city badge.
